

Plains Wandering: Exploring the Grassy Plains of South-Eastern Australia Ian Lunt, Tim Barlow, James Ross Victorian National Parks Association & Trust for Nature (Victoria)	Botanic Gardens of Australia: A Guide to 80 Botanic Gardens Leslie Lockwood, Jan Wilson, Murray Fagg New Holland Publishers (Australia)	The New Nature: Winners and Losers in Wild Australia Tim Low Viking
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Written by 3 passionate grasslands experts each with a slightly different focus • Main sections discuss the <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Ecology ○ Regional descriptions, incl Tasmania ○ Plants – alphabetically by family • Beautiful photos, also line drawings for grasses • Indexed 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Mostly 2pp per garden • Well organised and includes a panel with specific info listed as well as a more detailed description • Excellent photos • Published in 2001 – things can change so it would be worth checking info on website or responsible authority • I note that Inverawe, south of Hobart is not listed. A favourite private native garden of mine and I use every opportunity to promote it. Check out their newsletters in the Friends lounge. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Author of several important and popular books: Bush Tucker and Bush Medicine and Feral Future • Challenges us about our way of life and the notion of wilderness – and that’s just in Part I! • The other 3 Parts are just as challenging e.g. the destructions caused by kangaroos and koalas, wildlife living amongst us e.g. grey-headed bats and, might I add, koels.